Each week, National Journal keeps tabs on the world's largest business . . . the United States Government

National Journal is the only publication exclusively devoted to analysis and coverage of the full range of federal government activities. Activities which account for more than 25% of the gross national product and which have a pervasive impact on every sector of our economy and society. No other publication gives weekly cover-to-cover reporting on what the government is doing . . . and what it means.

Newsweek calls National Journal "the nation's most respected, non-partisan source of information about how Washington's policymaking machinery really works." And, according to Time, "Washington's shakers and movers, along with many of the shaken and moved, read National Journal scrupulously."

National Journal's award winning staff of reporters, researchers and analysts, considered one of the best in Washington, helps readers understand, interpret and predict government action.

... details the positions, strategies and tactics of the key figures in the Administration and Congress as well as the increasingly influential interest groups.

... analyzes emerging trends and issues which will directly affect you and your organization.

... keeps track of the key players in government, business, labor, interest groups and media who shape policy.

Who are our readers?

Traditionally, they have been primarily in the government—the White House, Congress and the agencies—and those who deal directly with the government. Newsweek says, we're "Washington's required reading."

But in recent years our circulation has rapidly expanded to include many of those outside Washington who must understand, interpret and predict government actions. National Journal provides a "special brand of anticipatory journalism that Washington watchers in business, government and the media rely on heavily to predict trends," reported Dun's Review.

If you're concerned about the impact of government policies and regulations on your organization, then National Journal may well prove to be as indispensable to you as it has to so many of your colleagues.

We have no ax to grind

National Journal is known for being ferociously non-partisan. We don't tell you what to think. We don't push a philosophy. Quite simply, we devote all our energies to providing careful no-nonsense coverage of the players and the process which determine government policy. National Journal gives you accurate, reliable and easy-to-use information.

If you want to skim the surface

then we may not be for you. Government decision making is a messy process. The actual consequences of policy changes are hard to decipher. And often they are contrary to what was intended. Yet our readers demand sophisticated, accurate reporting. Some of our articles are long, others brief. We give our reporters the time and the space that the subject—and our readers—require. Serious subjects are treated seriously.

But we know the value of your time

Concise summaries of our longer articles help you pick and choose those which are vital reading. There are cross-references and indexes galore for easy access to information crucial to you. Our weekly update of twenty critical issues takes only minutes to read. And our short reports are packed with solid information. Our readers value their time. We value it too.

We're not cheap

At least compared to the advertising-filled daily newspapers and weekly news magazines. But for about $7 a week you can supplement your staff with ours. We conduct personal interviews at all levels of government, sift through documents and reports, review Congressional hearings and judicial proceedings—in short we scan, pull together and analyze the whole world of Washington information.

Of most value, we bring our experience and sophisticated understanding of how government works, and who makes it work, to the reporting we give you. Add National Journal to your staff and stay on top of change.
